* announced during priest’s private mass
Earlier this week as I was talking to a parishioner about all that is going on with the world it dawned on me to turn to one of the greatest saints in the last hundred years, Padre Pio. Padre Pio Pietrelcina is well known for his famous expression: Pray, Hope and Don’t Worry.

He received the wounds of Christ, the stigmata, in 1918 during the greatest pandemic in modern history - the Spanish Flu. Padre Pio himself was severely sick throughout his life. He was prone to severe headaches and high fevers that were higher to what the human person can physically endure. Yet in the midst of all of this he trusted in God’s will and providence.

One day as a child when he was at his parish church with his father, a mother a came with her dying child in her arms and offered her prayers to God for her dying son. The future priest prayed for this boy silently and immediately the boy recovered right there on the spot.

Let us remember in the midst of all the great efforts we are doing to fight this pandemic, it is the Lord to whom we must turn to the most. Jesus Christ is the Lord of both Heaven and Earth. Padre Pio always remembered this saving truth.

How often he would pray to the Blessed Mother. Every single day he would offer many rosaries for his intentions and for the whole world. If he was ever in a panic, he just gave it to the Blessed Mother and she would always lead him to Jesus.

It is so easy for us to worry about the uncertain future. In a certain way, it is a good thing to worry because it shows that we care. But too much anxiety, too much worry can lead us to doubt in God’s saving work.

The Lord never told us that it was going to be easy. He spoke of carrying the cross but also promised that He would give us rest. Our comfort is in the Eucharist; it is Jesus who feeds us with His Body and Blood.

Like so many during these Covid-19 times, Padre Pio lived in isolation. He lived in isolation not because of a pandemic but because he was unjustly disciplined because of false rumors. He was forbidden to write to his friends and spiritual children. He was also forbidden to hear confessions and offer Mass publicly. Yet he stayed obedient and had recourse to Christ in His saving presence of the Eucharist. The one thing he could do was pray and offer private Holy Mass, which as simple as it is, it is really all that he needed.

Pray, Hope and Don’t Worry. Padre Pio lived these words. Let us turn to this great saint and look at his life as a wonderful example of the Christian Life.

In Jesus and Mary,

Catholics for Freedom of Religion

Are We Entering the Next Great Awakening?

Part 1

Two of the most significant events in United States history, the American Revolution and the Civil War, were each preceded by a “Great Awakening” - a spiritual revival based on individual freedom and a challenge to live more moral lives. These spiritual revivals set a standard for political individual freedom, democracy, and freedom for all people. The First Great Awakening, sparked by powerful religious preachers, began in the 1730’s and stressed individual responsibility for greater spiritual intimacy with God. This emphasis on the authority of individuals over the established religious authority created dissent with the religious and political hierarchy. This resulted in changing not only the religious framework but also the social and political landscape of the American Colonies.

Having experienced some democracy and equality in the churches, the common people began to demand democracy and equality in their political life as well. This desire for more freedom went directly against the goals of the British government’s desire for more money and control and became one of the basic causes of the American War for Independence.

The Second Great Awakening developed during the early 19th century (1790’s - 1840’s) and was described as “...an expansion of religious feeling unknown in American history.” This burst of religious enthusiasm prompted a movement to believe in the possibility of creating a much better world. Many yearned for stability, decency, and goodness in the new and turbulent expanding American republic.

Social reform came largely out of this new devotion to religion and took the shape of social movements for temperance, women’s rights, and the abolition of slavery, as well as reform to prisons and care for the handicapped and the mentally ill.

Many religious leaders believe America is now seeing the development of the next Great Awakening. In response to social and political challenges, they see Americans turning to our Judeo-Christian foundation for reaffirmation of the inalienable rights of each human being.

Americans remember in 1976 Cardinal Karol Wojtyla, Pope St. John Paul II, warned in his address in Philadelphia for the bicentennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence: “We are now facing the final confrontation between the Church and the anti-church, between the gospel and the anti-gospel, between Christ and the Antichrist. The confrontation lies within the plans of Divine Providence. It is, therefore, in God’s Plan, and it must be a trial which the church must take up, and face courageously.”
